
Obituary - Jim Redhead

Jim joined Knutsford Circle in the early sixties and gave himself to its activities with a quiet commitment that gave real strength. He was a short stocky man with ginger hair, horn rimmed spectacles and a strong Lancastrian accent. In manner he was measured and definite and his constant sense of fun transmitted warmth, peace and good humour to all the groups of which he was a part.

He was president of the Circle in 1965 and thereafter secretary for several years, giving the Circle great balance and discipline . By profession he was a respected Civil Engineer and he and his wife Florence had five daughters and the family participation was such that all became a part of the Circle.

He transferred to Wilmslow in 1969 and was a founder member of that Circle where he served as its President and ultimately a very senior member.

Jim died in February 1989 and all who new him, remember him with enjoyment, love and great respect.

MAY HE REST IN PEACE
